

Julie Ann Freischlag, M.D.

Class of 1972

Inducted November 16, 2006

2003-Present William Stewart Halsted Professor and Director of the Department of Surgery at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, and Surgeon-in-Chief, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Maryland.

First woman to hold this distinguished position and only the sixth person to serve in these posts in the 110-year history of the Johns Hopkins Institutions.

Leading expert in thoracic outlet syndrome and published author with more than 100 original articles and 27 book chapters to her credit.

Expanded the diversity of the Johns Hopkins staff as well the diversity of the medical school applicants.

1983 – Present Active Veterans Administration Medical Appointment

1998- 2003 Professor and Chief of Vascular Surgery UCLA Medical Center, Los Angeles, California

1992-1998 Chief of Surgery, Zablocki VA Medical Center, Milwaukee, Wisconsin

1997-1998 Professor of Surgery, Vice-Chair, Section of Vascular Surgery, Medical College of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Wisconsin

1986 – 1997 Served in various faculty positions at the UCSD Medical Center, San Diego, California; and the Medical College of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Service Awards Veterans' Administration Distinguished Service Award
Outstanding Teaching Awards – UCLA, UCSD, Medical College of Wisconsin
Distinguished Member Award from the Association of Women Surgeons
Association of Women Surgeons Foundation Visiting Professor Award

*“Always make a difference.
Do not forget to give back to those who helped you.”*